

Your First 2 Years with Total Group

Sale Process: Getting to know your Business

We typically meet several times to ensure we are good fit for our prospective clients. We look to identify existing IT resources, capability, functionality, and performance. We seek to understand the business needs and aspiration, discuss risks, and determine the risk appetite in the business. We ask about known existing issues and look to identify risks both known and unknown.

If no clarity exists over the existing, IT resources we can provide a network assessment to inventories systems so that licensing costs can be more accurately determined in advance. Its not uncommon for companies to not have an accurate understating of the exact number of devices and users in use in their business.
